TATINTL		when he was an employee of the Thus, the only issue is whether the employment relationship with which sponsors that relationship, creates a conflict of interest.
· .		4. A conflict of interest may be defined as an encounter between a Government employee's economic interest and his duty as a fiduciary to the public. However, it is not unusual to find *	Ċ.,	individuals, who are employed by an organization under contract or sponsorship with another Government entity, also under some type of contractual arrangement with the Agency. Problems arise, though, when the individual, who is in a consulting capacity, is in a position whereby he could influence a decision in which he has an economic interest. (We assume that there are provisions adequate TATINTL		to insure that is not paid by someone else in addition to the Agency for the time that we use him in his consultative capacity.) TATINTL		It is our opinion that is now in no better position to influence an Agency decision favorable than he was able to 4 4		influence a decision favorable to when he was our consultant
	.	and primarily employed there. As there was no legal objection to : .		his employment as a consultant when he was at ve find no legal objection now.
